

I find it hard for ChatGpt to make what I want exactly and If I keep asking it to change or do it differently it bugs out and looks weird. But I can also see this growing and becoming better, I also think AI will really take over coding because big corporations will do anything if it can save them a few bucks and this is a prime choice for them, I do hope that this is not the case for the future but we've already seen this happening with ads from Coca-cola. But when you compare Mine to Chatgpt I think my picture feels full of life and human.
